Editorial Review

About the Author

Nik Turner is co-founder of the legendary space rock band Hawkwind, and was a major creative force during that group's most critically acclaimed and successful period, 1969-1976. His outlandish costumes, improvised sax and flute playing, and general wild man persona became iconic representations of the band, and he would go on to pen some of their most popular songs including Brainstorm and Master of the Universe. With tons of never-before-seen photos, rare memorabilia, and personal recollections both hilarious and horrifying, this is the story of Hawkwind's journey from conception to peak, as told by Turner, the man seen by many as the true spirit of Hawkwind.
